If I Were Mayor

If I were mayor of College Park, I would use my eyes, ears and heart. I would want the best for my city and its citizens.

Keeping my eyes open, I would be able to see what the city needs. I would see if we need parks cleaned or roads and sidewalks repaired. I would also try to plant more trees so our city looks beautiful and it is good for the environment.

Keeping my ears open would help me hear the suggestions of my fellow citizens and understand what I need to change. I would make myself available to answer citizen's questions and hear their complaints.

With my heart open, I would try to reduce the suffering of my city's citizens. I would try to open more homeless shelters and encourage local businesses. I would try to keep the taxes low while keeping the budget in mind.

Education would be a priority for me. I would visit schools to see how the children are being taught. A good education today results in a brighter future tomorrow.

I would also try to make this a clean, beautiful, and safe city to live. As a mayor, I would try to get the crime rate to go down and the citizen involvement in community projects to go up.

My aim would be to make this an inviting city for its citizens and visitors. Keeping my eyes, ears, and heart open would allow me to improve the city of College Park and make it a strong community and a great place to live.
